There Will be Rest in the Eventide.

All day long the farmer may stand between his ploughhandles, turning the yielding soil; may endure the burden and heat of the day; may be burned by the scorching rays of the sun, or be drenched by sudden showers, but by-and-by the sun furls his banner of light, the birds cease their singing and fly home to their nests; the eventide has come, and tired man and weary beast find rest. All day long the smith plies his hammer while huge drops of perspiration roll down his smoke-begrimed brow. He belongs to a class that must toil for their bread, and work with him has become a second nature. He likes the music of his bellows and clink of his hammer, and as the huge sparks fly off from the red-hot iron he can almost imagine he is Jove forging thunderbolts and reveling in the forked lightnings as they wreath and twine around him. But as the sun goes down in the west, he lays by his leather apron, and washes the soot and smoke from his face, and goes home to enjoy the society of his family. For him there has come rest at the eventide.

All day the patient mother may toil for her little ones, sympathizing with them in their childish sorrows, calming their fears and soothing their pains, until she is worn out soul and body; but as night approaches sleep touches their eyelids with its magic wand—and for weary mother and tired child there has come the rest at eventide. And for us all there will come rest at eventide, it matters not what our occupation may be, nor where our footsteps roam. Life with its pitiful joys and bitter experiences, its feverish dreams and empty ambitions, its hope and fears, its loves and hates, will be ended after awhile. As we grow older our trust diminishes, as one by one our friends fail us and our expectations are cut off, the apples of Hesperides turn to dead sea fruit within our grasp, and the idols, we all, at times, so wildly worship, lie shattered at our feet. Oh, the follies and vanities of life; the lessons we have to learn and unlearn; no wonder, we grow weary, many of us, long before the end of the journey is reached. But all we can do is to possess our souls in patience, and press forward for the mark of the prize.

RENO EVENING GAZETTE.
RENO, WASHOE COUNTY, NEVADA
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1877.

Deacon Parkinson, an eminent practical man, and a literary miner of some note, was evidently unwell on Saturday. On that day while tampering with his editorial air gun, it was accidentally discharged, and the pellet killed the science of geology which happened to be within reach in the person of Prof. Gunning, an eminent scientist who has dared to express an opinion on the Comstock. In a short obituary over the victim, the Deacon stoutly condemns theory, and expresses his reverence for practice and experience of one miner. The Deacon neatly disposes of the idea that theory is the systematized experience of thousands, and loudly prefers the opinion of one old miner. The good man will next pay his respects to zoology and show how the life of one virtuous oyster opener is more expressive than the works of Agassiz and Edwards.

An Anglo-Indian journal advertises finished copies of the various latest style gods for sale. Among the number we notice "Niroudi, the prince of demons—a great number to choose from. The giant upon which he is mounted is boldly designed, and his sabre is fashioned in the highest style of the art. Bourberen, the god of riches—this god is of the finest workmanship—" and so on. The average American has a copy of "Bourberen" in one corner of his heart—when he goes to worship.

The politicians in Washington want to go home to vote. If the country is willing we hereby give them permission to go home and stay there. Under the present regime it seems they can't hold office and run the conventions, and their attempt to run the general government in the old way, does not appear to meet with entire success. They don't want to vote so much as they very much desire to embarrass the Administration.

Dom Pedro has returned to the pack in Brazil, and will soon be shuffled out of sight. The loyal subjects of his empire made a liberal bid, with speeches and sighs, for his hand. Pedro, however, refused to sell on these terms, and pitched it himself in solitude at home. Intelligence is the only card which can take that Pedro.

San Francisco is a strange city. It would seem that they have dog days there in the winter time, and some inksters blame Mayor Bryant for countenancing the bench show. We thought that was a mayor's business—to wag his tail at every proposed enterprise.

Jennie June, that ink loving female, who has made many pleats and flourishes popular, now affirms that Anna Dickinson—"stout-minded Ann"—had a chance this time to marry Ben Butler. We want to know how much Ann paid Jane for divulging the secret. Butler will conduct his own libel suit.

To-day Monday, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Virginia, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Mississippi elect State officers. Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Nebraska choose subordinate State officers. Illinois besides these elects county officers, and Connecticut chooses her legislature for the ensuing term.

Sitting Bull, the great American blood-letter, has been informed that if he grows impulsive and seeks to cross the American "tuft-hunting" or anything of that kind—that Canada will let loose the dogs of war. "Dogs of war," means British lions in Canada.

Dennis Kearney, leader of the discontented workmen in San Francisco has been arrested on charges of misdemeanor. There is a class of laborers in San Francisco who are constantly employed—looking up mischief.

The politicians who call so earnestly for a repudiation of Hayes, and the remodeling of his Cabinet, have not yet found time to ask what the people want. They are winsome creatures, these wire-pullers.

General Howard's command is on a special train bound West. It is supposed that the train is some three days behind time.

20,000 people and 200 coaches followed Harry Meigs to his grave in Lima, Peru.

LaGrange is to be removed from the Superintendency of the San Francisco Mint. Rosecrans is spoken of, but a western man will probably get it. Catlin or Dodge.

General McClellan's friends do not believe that he will be New Jersey's next Governor. "Small Mac" doesn't seem to be a success at the box.

Sunset Cox has written a book entitled "Why We Laugh." One reason is because Cox tries to be witty.

Turkey has called out her reserves. This course, observes a friend, deserves praise, for it conserves public safety and keeps Russia away from the Ottoman preserves.

The war in Europe looks very unfavorable from a Turkish point. Muktar Pasha's army is threatened, and the strongholds about Plivna are yielding one by one.

NET PROCEEDS.—The net proceeds of the California mine for the quarter ending September 30th is $3,022,367 25; of the Consolidated Virginia, $2,865,823 28. Total of the two on which the tax is to be levied, $5,888,190 53. The levy for State and county purposes is $2 02 on each $100. Total amount of the tax for both mines, $120,707 60.

EX-SENATOR HENDERSON AND THE PRESIDENT.—Washington November 3.—Ex-Senator Henderson, interviewing the President yesterday, gave distinctive form and expression to the views of many Republicans, who are impatient of delays in giving radical effects to the civil service reform policy. He told the President that in this connection he seemed to be acting upon false premises, and that a large portion of the present office holders, being appointees of the political machine, are covertly acting in the interest of those who desire to make the administration's reform efforts a failure. He advised the President that he must use the proper instruments of reform, if he would succeed and not allow technical pledges in his letter of acceptance restrain him from purifying the service of all who are not heartily in sympathy with the desired reform, because what the people desire is first to get the best men into the service and then let them remain there. If the President's desire was to keep out the machine politician, he should be sure that the machine politician is not already in. The President replied that Henderson's views were in harmony with the judgment of some members of the cabinet and not at all in conflict with his own.

ELECTION PROGNOSTICATIONS.—New York, Nov. 3.—Election prognostications continue obscure and conflicting. The best opinion is that the Republicans will preserve their control of the New York State Senate but lose the State ticket, with a possible chance of saving their Secretary of State and Attorney General, because of the defection of Tilden's friends and the anti-Tammany faction. On the other hand, there is among the Republicans much fear of the baneful influence of the feeling voiced in the Evening Post's suggestion that New York and New Jersey Republicans who vote for the State tickets of their party must do so with the knowledge that if those tickets are successful the Republican enemies of the Administration will accept the result as a triumph for Conkling and Robeson rather than of the higher principles for which President Hayes is contending. In the local contest here between the Tammany Democrats and the allied Republicans and anti-Tammany forces the regulars seem likely to achieve the larger success, as no general hearty co-operation by the Republican masses in favor of the coalition is apparent. In Brooklyn there is great hope that the coalition between the Independents and Republicans will overthrow the long dominant ring and elect John F. Henry, the well known druggist.

RAILROAD TOWNS.—The Elko Post says of us: The statement that Reno owes its marvelous growth and prosperity as much to the energy and watchfulness of its local press as to its favorable natural location, will not admit of an argument. Aside from its unrivaled water power, it possesses no natural advantages which are not shared in an equal or greater degree by several other promising towns along the line of the Central Pacific Railroad in Nevada. We do not say this disparagingly of Reno, for we have no reason to be jealous of its present greatness or future prosperity. Her people have made the most of every agent that could contribute to the advancement of the town, and it stands to-day a shining monument of their energy and go-ahead-iveness.

Postscripts.
BY DERRICK DODD.

The Mission street branch pound is a success, and the benches contain almost as many objects of interest as those at a young ladies' seminary on graduating day. The most gratifying and imposing feature of the exhibition is that every other dog of the six hundred is worth from $1,000 to $5,000. For illustration, the yellow bull-dog, for which we gave $3 in advertising last year, and gave away for nothing after he had broken his teeth on the shin-bone of a gentleman who became restive under our slanders, occupying a prominent position in class 16, and is, we are assured by the catalogue, worth $1,500. Unless this impostor of a canine leaves town in forty-eight hours, we shall feel compelled to publish his real name, which is anything but "Sir Rupert," as he claims. However, there is no question that dogs have risen enormously within the last few days, and the political economist can readily see that if all the entries were donated to the general government, and an auction held, the national debt could be immediately wiped out and enough left to finish the Washington monument. Among the barks stranded at the pavilion, the following are particularly noticeable:

"Pinney," a cur entered by Mr. de Young. This is a very treacherous beast, and requires constant watching. He is very appropriately tied behind bars, and is secured by heavy iron chains a greater part of the time. In the next box is

"LaGrange," a magnificent young mastiff, who was always in a good humor, and minds the snapping and snarling of his stealthy neighbor as little as he does the cheap wit of the passing penny-a-liners.

"Andy" is a powerful Irish watchdog entered by Alvinza Hayward. This animal is noted for his holding-on powers, and is very particular as to the quality of the water he drinks.

"Tom Keene" is a dog who imitates the popular actor of the name in so vociferous a manner that they have occasionally to turn a packing box over him to give the other dog stars (Skys) a chance.

"Howard," entered by Sharon, is a rather useful water spaniel.

"McLane" is a dog in the manger. "Fair" is a dog given to burrowing, and has an inveterate habit of scratching dirt over everything he finds until he can utilize the same for his own purposes.

"Reese" is a plethoric but miserly old dog, who calmly tucks away a large tenderloin steak about every two hours. No one but a savings bank President could afford to keep such a dog.

"Highbinder" is a Chinese bloodhound. This is a very repulsive dog, but is doing good work in reducing the Mongolians and other vermin.

"Pickering" is a sly old dog, with "Carr" engraved on his collar.

"Casebolt" is an ill-tempered coach dog, who pretends to be asleep in the straw until children, and things come near enough to bite.

"Old Hundred," called "Cobb" for short, is one of the finest barking dogs ever seen in this vicinity. But we might go on forever with these curious remarks. The kind hearted public will be glad to know that the property moon has been secured from the California Theater, and will be hung up over the benches at ten P. M. each evening, so that such dogs as are accustomed to howl all night at the luminary will feel comfortable and at home. Dummy figures gotten up as book peddlers, tramps and postmen will be passed around early in the morning for the larger dogs to bite. Old bonnets, silk hats and gum shoes, for the smaller ones to chew up, will be thankfully received by the managers. Puppies without high collars not admitted. Rat terriers and newspaper office dogs will receive prizes in accordance with their ability in their several specialties. Advertisements for 1,000 rats and the same number of delinquent subscribers will be found in another column.

DESERT LAND INVESTIGATION.—Following are instructions from the department to agents. At the hearing inquiry should be made of the applicants, who must appear in person, where his present residence is, how long he has resided there whether he knew from personal observation anything about the character of the tract entered before making the entry, or whether the money so paid was advanced by other parties, and, if so, by whom; whether he has assigned, mortgaged, or agreed to assign, convey or mortgage his interest, present or future, in the tract or tracts so entered, and, if so, to whom, when and upon what consideration. If such conveyance has been made by the applicant the production of the original instrument or certified copy thereof should be required to be made by the applicant the production of the original instrument or certified copy thereof should be required to be made part of the testimony in the case. The testimony of each witness should be taken by question and answer, and a direct answer should be elicited to all questions propounded to him pertaining to the particular case.

The funeral of Wes. Holliday, who was shot by Phillips Saturday night last, took place this afternoon, and was largely attended.

An eminent Scottish divine happened to meet two of his parishioners at the house of a lawyer, whom he considered too sharp a practitioner. The lawyer jocularly put the question: "Doctor, these are members of your flock. May I ask, do you look upon them as white or black sheep?" "I don't know," answered the divine, dryly, "whether they are black or white sheep; but I know if they are here long they are pretty sure to be fleeced."

Eastern and California oysters in every style at the Saddle Rock, Commercial Row, Reno Nevada.

Liszt is described as teaching his pupils altogether. They sit about the room—one at the piano—and he walks up and down, correcting and suggesting, with a smile to one and a nod to another. Sometimes he displaces a player and summons another to repeat some ill-played passage in better fashion, and presently he calls upon one after another to play, with long pauses of conversation and laughter between. All his pupils are said to be jealous and envious among themselves, and Liszt himself says: "Do you imagine these young people are amiable? On the contrary, they are continually scratching one another's eyes out and tearing one another to pieces."

FATAL AFFRAY.

Wes. Holliday Fatally Shot by W. R. Phillips, in the Second Street Dance House.

Mollie Forsha the Partial Cause of the Deadly Affray—Coroner's Verdict.

Near the hour of twelve Saturday night, was enacted in the hurdy house on Second street, the scene, which many have often wondered has not occurred, even frequently in this brothel. Two young men, one not 24 and the other 26 years of age, who had for some several months been at different times the "fellow" of the notorious Mollie Forsha, met, exchanged a few words, fired at each other, and to-day the fond parents of one follow his remains to the grave, while the other lies in jail awaiting the investigation of his crime.

The circumstances of this affray, as definitely as we could gather them, are as follows:

W. R. Phillips, recently an employee of James Mayberry and a young man bearing a good name, betrayed great folly by frequently associating with the ex-prison-bird Mollie Forsha. A week ago they fell out and she took up with young Holliday. The latter had on several occasions, so we are informed by several parties, principally Phillips, rasped Phillips' feelings by calling out to him when in a crowd "Mollie Forsha," and drawing money from his pocket had said "coin producer," etc. Saturday night, between 8 and 9 o'clock, both met in the above dance house. Holliday then threw out his insults again, a few words were exchanged, and "Wes" drew his pistol, and but for the intervention of Geo. Gardner, would probably have shot Phillips. The latter said he was not "heeled." Wes told him to go and "heel" himself. Phillips left, but soon came in again. Both soon met again and called each other s—b—; but parties interfered. Phillips danced three or four dances, and went down town. Shortly after 11 o'clock he returned to the dance house. He says, before Holliday came back; others say Wes was standing by the stove. Some time thereafter he saw Holliday by the stove, and walking towards him said: "Did you mean that little flourishing display of yours awhile ago?" The words were repeated, when Holliday said, "yes, I meant them, are you heeled, you s—b—?" and both drew their revolvers. One of the musicians—Israel—stepped between the men, but seeing that he was in danger of being shot, stepped aside. Both men fired at once. As to who fired first, the first is not clearly known. We have heard some say that it was Holliday, others that it was Phillips. The prisoner is positive that Wes fired first. Phillips' ball lodged in the end of the room, to the right of the musicians' stand, Holliday's near the ceiling. Phillips' next shot lodged in the wall near the stove, but Holliday's pistol refused to fire and he ran toward the bedroom door at the other end of the room. E. A. Junior, the bar-tender, ran ahead of Holliday through the same door and while passing through it was shot accidentally by Phillips in the fleshy portion of the back part of both thighs. The ball passed through the left thigh and lodged in the right. His wounds, although very painful, are not at all dangerous and he will probably be up and around in two or three weeks. Phillips fired again but did no damage. Holliday passed through the door, and, closing it behind him, stood there for a few moments. Phillips stood near by with pistol cocked waiting any move Wes might make. The latter stuck his pistol through the partially opened door and snapped it. Phillips immediately fired his fifth shot which pierced the thin door panel and entered the abdomen of Holliday, just below and to the left of the navel, and lodged near the skin within an inch or two of the backbone. Holliday stepped back a few feet and fell, saying, "I am shot." He was placed on a bed near by and Drs. Johnson, Bergman and another physician called to see him. He was shortly after removed to his father's residence on West Second street, where, after much suffering, he expired at 3:30 yesterday afternoon. His last words were: "Father, hold me, I am growing deaf." This afternoon at 2:30 his funeral took place from his father's residence.

A crowd gathered about Phillips after the shooting and some one took his pistol from him. Phillips then passed out into the street and sat down in a dark place.

About one o'clock Dan Sullivan passed along the street, when Phillips walked up to him and said, "Stranger I have shot Holliday and want to give myself up; where shall I go?" Dan went with him to the Sheriff's office, where Phillips surrendered himself up and was lodged in jail.

At noon to-day the Coroner's jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death from a wound caused by a pistol in the hands of W. R. Phillips, and that said shooting was justifiable.

The statements made to us were somewhat conflicting. Both parties were evidently to blame, but the guilt or innocence of Phillips will be fully brought out in his trial. The affair was unfortunate and has its sad lessons. A young man was hurried into eternity; the same den in which he received his death wound awaits other victims, and she whose "steps take hold on hell" loves to incite acts of violence and death.

Jottings.

L. E. Doan and R. P. Ferguson, of Boca, were in town yesterday.

Quite a romantic marriage was that of friend Dickens yesterday.

The lightning train stopped for dinner yesterday, at Chamberlain's. Among the passengers were J. G. Fair and Steve Gage.

H. P. Metcalf and M. G. Elmore arrived from San Francisco yesterday morning.

Tom Norcross says he's from Vermont, and we say Ireland. Take your choice.

The match between Morgan and Muggins has been settled.

This evening at 7 o'clock there will be a business meeting of the Riverside club, at D. A. Bender and Co.'s bank. A full attendance is desired.

Sam Davis, local reporter of the Virginia Chronicle and E. J. Parkinson, of the Carson Tribune were in town yesterday. Both returned to their respective homes and duties this morning.

ALMOST A FATAL AFFRAY.—Yesterday morning Mr. McLemore met Dr. Snow in front of the P. O., and accused the latter of persuading his (Mc's.) young daughter away from her home. The Dr. denied the allegation, when McLemore called him a s—b—. The Dr. struck him with his cane and breaking it to pieces. Mc. drew his revolver, the medico followed suit, instantly Mr. Richard Nash, ex-Sheriff of Humboldt, stepped between the two men, caught hold of McLemore and told Snow to go away. The Dr. did so, and the difficulty was over. The escape from a fatal affray was a very narrow one however. The circumstances leading to the assault were connected with the elopement of Dickens, clerk of Simmons on Virginia street, with McLemore's daughter a young girl of 16. It seems that McLemore believed that Dr. Snow encouraged or abetted the love affairs of Dickens and Miss McLemore. The storm is perhaps all over and the wrongs, real or fancied, will more or less disappear with cooled down passions and the lapse of time.

MYSTERIOUS EXPERIMENT.—A party of ladies and gentlemen who were spending the evening at the house of a friend last night, after variously employing their time, made a practical experiment of what is at once mysterious yet nevertheless as true as it is puzzling. It is this: A person lies flat on his back, four others gather round him and place their index finger under him. Each one, including the party lying down, take a full inspiration and hold the same, and while so doing slightly lift upward. The one who is lying down will be raised and kept in the air as long as all hold their breath. Of course no one is to laugh. Immediately after the breath is no longer held the person so suspended falls to the floor. Simple as this experiment is, and as absurd and unreasonable as it may appear, we can testify that it can be successfully performed. We are unable to account for the philosophy of this curious fact and thought it to be a joke, but having seen it tested on a man who weighs over 200 pounds, as well as on ourselves, we know what we state to be true. The proof is only in the practical test.

Truckee Items.

Train Ditched—Attempted Suicide—Fire, Etc.

TRUCKEE, Nov. 4th, 1877.

Passenger train No. 1, going east, met with an accident last night about one mile from this place, which fortunately resulted in no injury to passengers or employers, and but slight damage to the train. A broken rail was the cause, three or four damaged cars and a detention of several hours the effect. Train No. 2, coming west, was delayed some seven hours in reaching Truckee. A fortunate circumstance in connection with this accident was that the cars tipped against the bank, making it impossible for them to turn over. The river runs close to the track on the other side, and had the fates so willed it, much more than this limited space would have been necessary in detailing the horrors of the affair.

THROAT CUTTING.

One of the most remarkable cases of attempted suicide that I can call to mind at present, occurred here Saturday evening, about five o'clock. A man named Charles Lunn, who has long been identified with Truckee, while temporarily crazed by drink, attempted to cut his throat with a pair of scissors, and so far succeeded as to sever his windpipe and inflict such other injuries as will in all probability terminate his existence. It was not until 10 o'clock last night that he was found. He for a time persisted in his efforts to end his life, and directed all his energy to the task of defeating the work of the surgeon. At this writing he has changed his mind and seems to regret his rash and exceedingly desperate act.

FIRE.

Truckee's firemen were on the qui vive this morning at an alarm of fire sounded by the "Samson." The alarm was occasioned by the burning of a small cabin near E. Ellen's saw mill, which was soon consumed without affording the boys opportunity for a sport. As a consequence I am unable to judge of the relative merits of "Washoe No. 4," of Truckee, and our standby, "Reno No. 1." The loss is said to have been about $200.

ETC.

Truckee is, to my mind, the home of sensation. Events of a social nature intermixed with the sensational, crimes of heinous import, startling accidents and sudden and violent deaths have so tempered the mind of the average Truckeeite that his pulse never quickens in the least at events which would horrify the denizens of other localities. Sensation lurks on every corner and may be sniffed in every breeze that blows through her grand old trees. No description can fitly represent Truckee's sensational proclivities. A brief residence among and acquaintance with its many sterling citizens will more than confirm the opinion I have expressed, and I could safely recommend him who seeks diversion from his own afflictions to visit this healthful and sensationally active town. From one extreme to the other, with a variety and abandon that will make his heart beat fast for awhile and start his sluggish blood into active circulation. Nothing done by halves and no telling whose clothes will be torn next.

From the flag staff on the plaza the stars and stripes float at half mast in honor of Senator O. P. Morton.

The weather is exceedingly variable—a dash of snow, a gleam of sunshine, alternate during the day and are succeeded by a cold, frosty night. Such, at least, has been the programme for the past few days.

Truckee hopes for a severe winter and the early completion of the direct road from Reno to Virginia.

NED.

TO START UP.—We are informed that the reduction works of the Nevada quicksilver mines, near Steamboat Springs, will be ready for operation in a week or ten days. Messrs. Humbert & Co. mean business. They believed that a modification of White's roasting furnace would work successfully, and tried a futile experiment. They will now use a furnace which has been proved a success.

Remember the pleasant concert entertainment by the McGibeny family to-night, at the Methodist Church on Sierra street near the public school house. Their performance will be as interesting as it will prove pleasing. Proceeds go to the church.

A Ghastly Picket Line.

Judge Rowe, writing to the Philadelphia Weekly Times, relates the following incident of the night after the battle of Fredericksburg: "When on the return to Marye's Heights, the command first filed in from the road, there appeared to be a line of soldiers sleeping on the ground to be occupied. They seemed to make a sort of row or rank. It was as if a line of skirmishers had halted and lain down; they were perfectly motionless; their sleep was profound. Not one of them awoke and got up. They were not relieved either when the others came. They seemed to have no commander—at least none awake. Had the fatigues of the day completely overpowered all of them, officers and privates alike? They were nearest the enemy, within call of him. They were the advance line of the Union army. Was it thus that they kept their watch, on which the safety of the whole army depended, pent up between the ridge and the river? The enemy might come within ten steps of them without being seen. The fog was a veil. No one knew what lay or moved or crept a little distance off. The regiments were allowed to lie down. In doing so, the men made a denser rank with those there before them. Still those others did not waken. If you looked closely at the face of any one of them, in the mist and dimness, it was pallid, the eyes closed, the mouth open, the hair was disheveled, besides the attitude was often painful. There were blood marks also. These men were all dead. Nevertheless, the new comers lay down among them and rested. The pall of night concealed the foe now. The sombre uncertainty of fate enveloped the morrow. One was saved from the peril of the charge but he found himself again on Marye's Hill, near the enemy, face to face with the dead, sharing their couch, almost in their embrace, in the mist and the December night. Why not accept them as bedfellows? So they lay down with the dead, all in a line, and were lulled asleep by the monotony of the cries of the wounded scattered everywhere."

John W. Forney is spoken of as Chief of America's representation at the Paris Exposition.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE

Second Judicial District of the State of Nevada, in and for the County of Washoe, do hereby certify that

James Mayberry as plaintiff in the District Court of the Second Judicial District, in and for the County of Washoe, State of Nevada, and

Antonio Boverio, and ———— Lopez, co-partners doing business under the firm name and style of Ceresia Germania & Co., greeting: You are hereby required to appear in an action commenced against you as defendants by James Mayberry as plaintiff in the District Court of the Second Judicial District, in and for the County of Washoe, State of Nevada, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons, (exclusive of the day of service). If served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said District, and in all other cases forty days if served by mail will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover a judgment against you, the defendants, for the sum of Three Thousand, Nine Hundred and Sixty Dollars ($3,960.00) gold coin of the United States, in favor of the plaintiff, said sum being a balance due the plaintiff on an account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by plaintiff to defendants at their special instance and request, also for board of men (employees of defendants) and horse feed obtained at the special instance and request of defendants from plaintiff, said account commencing on or about the 1st day of October, 1877, and ending on the 17th day of December, A. D. 1876, the whole of said account amounting to the sum of $2,054.25, on which there was paid the sum of $3,000, leaving the sum of $3,054.25 balance due as aforesaid, all of which will be made fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Reno, in said county. And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will take judgment for the said amount, besides interest and costs of suit.

In testimony whereof, I, P. B. Comstock, Clerk of said Court, do hereunto set my hand and the seal of said Court, this 31st day of August, A. D. 1877.

P. B. COMSTOCK, Clerk.
